

Community Development Program serves deaf adults

The National Academy of Gallaudet College, within the Division of Public Services, has become known for its workshops, seminars and other training activities geared toward educating various professional groups about the unique needs of hearing impaired citizens. Most notable has been its progress in training for members of the health professions—physicians, nurses, emergency medical technicians, mental health personnel, and so forth. Other areas of impact include victim/witness assistance, mass transit (travel agents, train attendants), and legal services.

Programs like these, with the support of federal legislation (Section 504), have resulted in increased awareness and sensitivity on the part of many service providers across the United States. Hospitals, police stations and libraries have installed TDDs, introduced sign language classes to their personnel and in general taken steps to ensure accessibility to the local hearing impaired population. This is all very positive. However, a common cry from the service providers has become "Where are the deaf people? Why don't they call us or come in?"

Personnel in the Division of Public Services saw a need for an educational program that would provide deaf adults with an opportunity to learn about community services and to develop skills for tapping these services. As the National Academy's mission includes education of the disabled population as well as professionals who serve them, the Community Development Office was established.

The Community Development Program is currently in the middle of its first year of direct service. A number of workshops for deaf adults have been developed and are being offered through St. Mary's School for the Deaf in Buffalo, NY and the Pennsylvania School for the Deaf in Philadelphia, PA. As part of these programs, events are scheduled for professionals to meet with deaf members of their community. Professionals attend a three-hour orientation to deafness seminar, including a panel presentation by local deaf adults.

Topics for the pilot "Life Planning Series" include:

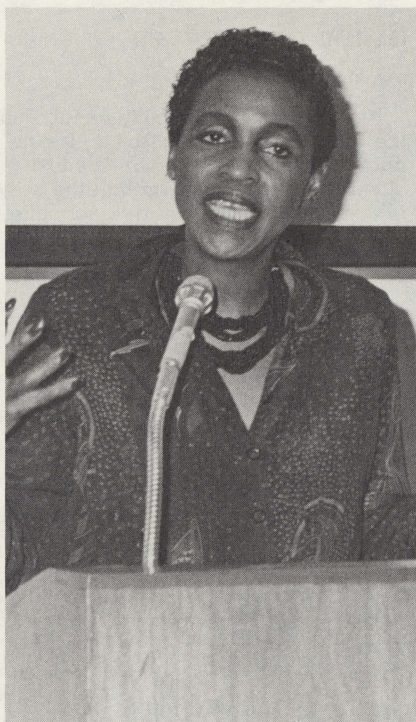

- Introduction to Life Planning
- To Your Good Health
- You and the Law
- Politics and Your Life
- Your Career: Past, Present, Future
- How to Make the Best of the Best Years of Your Life
- You Should Hear What You're Missing

"How to Make the Best of the Best Years of Your Life" is being developed by a group of professionals and deaf seniors in Baltimore, MD and will be piloted at the Waxter Center for Senior Citizens. Associated Catholic Charities is co-sponsoring this workshop. "You Should Hear What You're Missing" is being developed by professionals in Buffalo and is designed for older adults who are experiencing hearing loss. The remaining workshops have been developed by committees of Gallaudet and Washington-area personnel.

Following the pilot presentations in Buffalo and Baltimore, workshops will be available to interested communities across the country. Meanwhile, a few other workshops are being developed and will be added to the existing topics following their pilot presentations. "Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Museums But Didn't Know How to Ask" is being developed in conjunction with the Office of Fine Arts in Education. Its first offering will be at the Museum of Science in Boston, MA through the Massachusetts State Association of the Deaf.

Dorothy Gilliam, columnist with the Washington Post, spoke to students at MSSD recently about her life and work as a newspaper reporter and columnist. She said that the media is very powerful but feels that media is influenced "by too few voices" and that there is a need for voices representing the points of view of black people, women and handicapped people to be heard. She told students it was their responsibility to "dig beneath what is told you to discover the truth." Gilliam's appearance was arranged by MSSD's Social Studies Department.

Kendall kids jump for Heart Assn.

Students at Kendall School are holding a "Jump Rope for Heart" event from 1-3 p.m. on Friday, March 26 in the KDES gym to benefit the American Heart Association, Nation's Capital Affiliate, and are asking the Gallaudet community to support their efforts.

The students are asking for pledges and will jump rope in teams for a maximum of three hours, raising money for the Heart Association for each minute their team jumps rope.

"Jump Rope for Heart," sponsored by the D.C. National Bank and the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance, is a team exercise event held to help in the battle against heart disease. Heart attacks and strokes kill more than 51% of the almost two million Americans who die every year.

The event was initiated by KDES Physical Education Instructor Doris Schwarz who said that the KDES students love to jump rope and feels this is a good way to help promote students' awareness of lifelong conditioning exercises. "I also feel it's important to show that deaf persons do get involved in supporting activities to benefit the local community," she said. KDES is the first program for deaf students to participate in this program. Last year, more than one million students in all states participated in the event.

Students will receive a variety of gifts—from gym bags to special T-shirts—based on the amount of contributions they turn in. All students who participate will receive a special certificate of appreciation from the local Heart Association.

Members of the Gallaudet community wishing to make a pledge (students are asking for a minimum pledge of three cents per minute) can call x5256 voice or TDD, or contact Al Couthen or Doris Schwarz.

KDES faculty assisting in the event are Pat Yates and Jo Ann Mackinson of the Primary Department, Melvina Nomeland and Pam Perone of the Elementary Department and Don Mahoney and Shelby Kubis of the Middle School.

Charter Day dinner scheduled

In addition to Charter Day activities at Gallaudet for the campus community on April 23, Charter Day will be celebrated with a buffet dinner and "Old Timers" Program on April 17 in the College Dining Hall.

Guest speaker will be Dr. Robert Sanderson, this year's recipient of the Powrie V. Doctor Chair of Deaf Studies. A prize will be awarded to the lady and gentleman with the best "Old Timer" costume worn to the dinner.

Tickets are $12 per person. For reservations, contact Polly Peikoff, chairperson, in the Office of Alumni and Public Relations, x5104 TDD. Reservations should be made by April 1.

More information on April 23 Charter Day activities on campus will be published in an upcoming issue of On the Green.

Library Bits & Pieces

New periodicals

by Jeanne Karlecke

"Mainstreaming at the National Child Research Center," "Bringing Research into Deaf and General Education" and "Focus on Deaf Artists" are only a few of the articles in the deafness-related periodicals that the Gallaudet College Library has recently acquired.

On Cue newsletter is a monthly publication published by the Cued Speech Association. The newsletter contains nationwide and world-wide information and updates on the development of Cued Speech.

Artistically talented deaf people will be interested in Spectrum, whose main purpose is to give deaf artists the opportunity to express themselves. The newsletter seeks out deaf artists and puts them in touch with each other and the public, keeping them up to date on conventions and conferences related to specific artistic interests. It is shelved in the Deaf Periodicals section on the main floor.

Bridge stands for Bringing Research Into Deaf and General Education. The editor of the newsletter states, "The purpose of Bridge is to facilitate communication among researchers with interest in the education of deaf people." Bridge includes a description of research currently in progress, brief reports of findings, reviews of books or papers, information on future conferences, conference reports and other interesting articles.

The Journal of Nonverbal Behavior is a new addition to the Library. It publishes research in the area of nonverbal behavior including—but not limited to—kinesics, facial expression, eye contact and face-to-face interaction. It contains such articles as "Close Encounters of the Stressful Kind," which talks about reactions to the experience of crowding; how stereotyping can affect the behavior of mental patients; and "The Effects of Attire, Location and Sex on Aiding Behavior." Although this journal seems to be especially helpful to the researcher, it can prove interesting and helpful to the layperson also.

The Daughters of the American Revolution Magazine focuses on patriotism. It includes articles on patriotic holidays, presidents, D.A.R. meetings, tours and conventions, and American independence.

Channels is the magazine of television and society. Many of the articles are related to television and the new technological advances being made in the field of communications. Topics covered include cable television, the use of television in educational settings, the effects of television on private life and how the new technologies affect Hollywood, money, real estate, etc.

In addition to the magazines mentioned above, the Library's new periodicals include South, Policy Studies Review, International Journal of Oral History, Signs of the Time, Communications, Studies in Education Evaluation, Public Communications Review, Contact, New York Deaf Women's Newsletter and others.

Next time you come to the Library, take some time to browse through the Periodicals section on the main floor. If you can't find the magazine you want, feel free to contact Steven Frank in ME 11.

Gallaudet participates in NW area elementary school music program

The Shepherd Park Elementary School, located in the Northwest Campus community, invited Gallaudet to participate in its Music in D.C. Public Schools Week recently.

This year's theme was "Music—A Sound Investment." The program was coordinated with the Reading Is Fundamental program. The program focused on four areas of music: harmony, melody, rhythm and expression. Students at the school dedicated the "expression" area to its new neighbor, Gallaudet, by performing several mime acts. Bob Hahn, a librarian with KDES, interpreted the song "You Light Up My Life" as the student chorus sang.

Principal Edith Smith extended a warm welcome to the College and said that in the future she hopes that "we all will be able to say Shepherd Park and Gallaudet College in the same breath."

La Varne Hines, Equal Opportunity Officer at Gallaudet, presented the school library with sign language posters and alphabet cards for the students. Hines and others will be working with the school to plan an orientation program for students and faculty.

Faculty Research

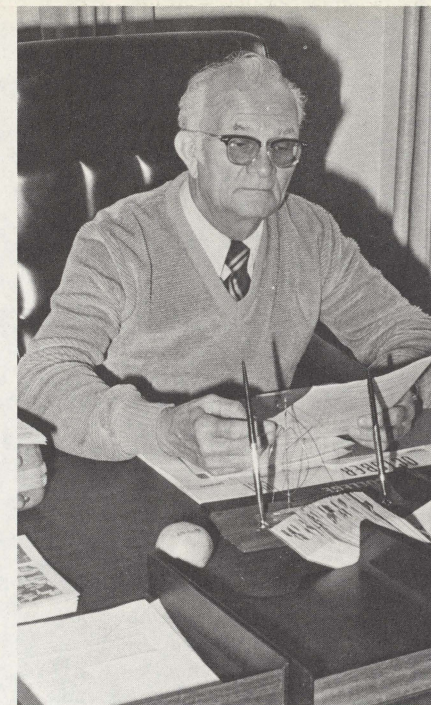

Described in this column are research projects that received assistance from the Office of Faculty and Graduate Student Research. For more details on projects discussed, contact Clarence Williams, Division of Research, x5030.

Study on services to elderly deaf

Richard Phillips, a faculty member in the Department of Counseling, is conducting a research project related to elderly deaf persons. Through the use of a specially developed questionnaire, the project will explore the current status of human services to the elderly deaf population.

Phillips plans to use this data to ascertain the possibility and need for graduate level courses in providing counseling to the elderly deaf community on an individual and group basis. In addition, information will be disseminated about current service provisions, gaps in such services and how these services may be upgraded.

Additional information on this project may be obtained from Richard Phillips, x5590.

Don Pettingill is director of Demonstration Programs, which is sponsoring the Dance-A-Thon at Gallaudet.

Education proposals

The Department of Education has announced a deadline of April 23, 1982 for applications for grant proposals under the Women's Educational Equity Act Program. The purpose of these program awards is to develop educational materials and model programs designed to promote women's educational equity.

Of possible interest to Gallaudet faculty and staff are the "Projects on Educational Equity for Disabled Women and Girls." Funds for these projects will be used to support model projects on issues such as double discrimination, bias and stereotyping.

Interested persons may contact Dr. Leslie Wolfe, Director, Women's Educational Equity Act Program, Department of Education, Room 1100, Donohue Building, 400 Maryland Ave. SW, Washington, D.C. 20202, (202) 245-2181.

Zoo holds program

The National Zoo, as an observance of the National Year of Disabled Persons this year, will be holding a Human/Animal Partnership program at the zoo March 27-28.

The event, which will feature films of animals and persons working together, speakers and live animal training demonstrations which emphasize the various relationships between humans and animals, will be held from 10-4 p.m. in the Education Administration Building, just inside the Connecticut Avenue entrance to the zoo.

An interpreter will be on hand both days to help hearing impaired persons enjoy the event. Interested persons should plan to come early to get a parking space. Also, the Woodley Zoo stop on the Red Line of the Metro is a short walk from the zoo.

Community Development Program

Two other workshops, yet untitled, are being developed with the two Gallaudet College Extension Centers for New Hampshire and Kansas. These will be designed to facilitate collaborative planning on the part of local service providers and members of the deaf community.

The workshops are actually facilitated by persons knowledgeable in the subject area and fluent in manual communication. The Life Planning Series is being taught by Gallaudet personnel who have entered into cooperative agreements with the National Academy. In the future, however, it is hoped that facilitators can be drawn from other parts of the country. Additional facilitators are needed and effort will be made to identify qualified persons in the coming months.

Persons with questions, suggestions or comments are encouraged to contact Gina Oliva, coordinator of Community Development Programs, in College Hall, x5480.

Letters

Dear Dr. Merrill and the Campus Community:

Lots of friends are made in 11 years, and it's hard to call each one to say goodbye. Today is my last working day at Gallaudet, and though I'll already be gone when friends read this, I hope you will all know I'll be thinking of you often—and anyone who would like to reach me can do so at 681-9790.

Gallaudet's such a special place—and it all happens because such special people work here. Keep up the good work.

Happy futures to you all,

Kathy Burton
Administrative Secretary
Linguistics Research Lab

Dancers perform

A performance entitled "Time, Space and Energy" will be presented by the Gallaudet Dance Company, in conjunction with the Department of Physical Education and Athletics, March 26-27 at 8 p.m. and March 28 at 7:30 p.m. Performances will be held in Elstad Auditorium.

Tickets are $3 for adults and $1 for students and senior citizens. For more information, call Gloria Bowman at x5680 voice or TDD.

A Message from the President

A Visit to Qatar

On Feb. 23, Dr. Philip Saif, who is director of Curriculum Development and Evaluation at the Kendall Demonstration Elementary School, and I left Washington to visit the University of Qatar at the invitation of the president of the University, Dr. M.I. Kazem. While in Doha, the capital city of Qatar, I was scheduled to present a lecture to the faculty of education, give a second public lecture, visit the Minister of Education and visit the El-Amal Institute for Deaf-Mutes.

The Qatar peninsula is situated on the west coast of the Arabian Gulf between Bahrain to the north and the United Arab Emirates to the south. Nowhere does the landscape of Qatar rise above 120 meters. Qatar, with its many islands, covers a total of 11,480 square kilometers. There is some vegetation in the north but the south is arid with stretches of salty sand flats relieved by sand dunes. The independence of Qatar was announced in 1971 and the government of Qatar is now the responsibility of H.H. the Emir, Sheikh Khalifa bin Hamad al-Thani. Qatar was experiencing an uncomfortably cool February with the temperatures dropping to 60 degrees!

Dr. Saif and I visited the University of Qatar on Thursday, Feb. 25 and had a conference with Dr. A. al-Kubaisi (co-president of the University), Dr. A. al-Ibrahimi (secretary-general of the University), Dr. L. Melikian (professor of psychology) and Dr. H. al-Doraini (professor of education). Later we met with Dr. G.A. Gaber (vice president and dean of the School of Education). During these meetings, professional developments in Qatar were discussed as well as progress being made by the relatively new university.

Friday evening we were driven to the new Doha Sheraton Hotel. It was officially opened Feb. 22 to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the Emir as ruler. The hotel is built in the form of a pyramid with an open-style interior. Our purpose in going to the hotel was to attend a lecture given by an Egyptian scholar on the formation of letters in the Arabic language. He showed the letters in rectangular and circular contexts and then speculated about their change in form during different historic periods. From these changes he actually created several colorful pictures from the Arabic characters. At the lecture we met the architect who has designed the University of Qatar and several professors. We ended our evening with a discussion with Dr. Bushnaq's nephew who is an official in the government of Qatar.

On Saturday morning, Feb. 27, Dr. Saif and I met with President Kazem and went immediately with him for an audience with His Excellency Sheikh Muhammad bin Khalifa al-Thani, Minister of Education, Culture and Youth. He is a brother of the Emir. He received us cordially among television cameras and reporters. The Minister was surprised by the number of deaf people in the United States and wanted to know more about special programs in Qatar. I presented him with a copy of Deaf Heritage as a gift from Gallaudet College, and he seemed pleased to receive it, especially when I mentioned the successful lives of deaf people who had obtained an education. I invited him to visit Gallaudet College and he is apparently interested in doing so.

After the visit with the Minister, Dr. Saif, Dr. al-Doraini and I went to the el-Amal Institute for Deaf-Mutes where we met the officials and observed one class of retarded children and three classes of deaf children. The teachers of the deaf children were concentrating on speech development, the students responding to words orally as the instructor pointed to them on the blackboard. We noticed a chart showing Arabic letters for fingerspelling. Both Dr. Saif and I felt that most instructional time was given to speech development with little curriculum available for other subjects.

After a luncheon hosted by President Kazem, Dr. Saif and I were driven to the American Embassy where we met with the Ambassador of the United States, Charles Edward Mathinson, and told him about the purpose of our trip. As he had lived in Washington, D.C., he knew about Gallaudet. He told us about progress being made in Qatar and was enthusiastic about developments there.

After driving to the new campus of the University of Qatar, not yet completed, I returned to the University of Qatar where I met Dr. Gaber. I presented a paper to the faculty of that School entitled, "How A Special College Serves Deaf People in the United States" and responded to questions concerning deafness, the mission of the College and provisions for preparing faculty to serve disabled persons in the United States.

In the afternoon, Dr. Saif and I visited the el-Amal Institute for Deaf-Mutes which was for girls only. Most of the female faculty was composed of Egyptians with the exception of the principal, who was a Qataris and had received her degree from the University of Kuwait. Instructional methods were the same and Dr. Saif and I felt that the curriculum was extremely limited.

My final lecture was given Sunday evening to a large number of faculty members as well as representatives from the school for deaf children. All persons attending both lectures were male. This lecture was on the subject of "The Education of Disabled Persons in the United States." The lecture was well received, but the persons present were quite appalled with the number of disabled persons that the United States needs to provide for. This is a function of the large population which the United States has, but they were concerned that we should reduce the amount of disability. They implied that some of the disability came from our involvement in wars as well as our tendency to smoke and drink.

At various times during the visit, Dr. Saif and I had discussions with President Kazem, Dr. Gaber and other University officials. We endeavored to identify ways in which Gallaudet College and the University of Qatar could collaborate.

The purpose of our trip was to respond to the invitation of Dr. Kazem to work with the University of Qatar in the field of disability. For this reason the University invited us to be consultants and underwrote the cost of the trip.

Personnel Hotline

Open Season begins soon

The Office of Personnel Management (OPM) recently announced that the Open Season for health insurance, which was postponed from last year, will definitely be held May 3-28. This means that all permanent employees may either change their present health insurance enrollment or join a plan for the first time with no strings attached.

Any changes or first time elections during the Open Season will take effect on July 11, 1982. Also, according to OPM's information, another Open Season will be held in November.

At this time the Personnel Office at Gallaudet has received some 1982 plan booklets for Blue Cross/Blue Shield, Kaiser Georgetown, Group Health and Columbia Medical Plan. Current subscribers in health plans will soon be receiving a copy of their plan's 1982 booklet. As soon as more booklets and summary sheets are obtained from OPM, they will be made available to all presently enrolled employees.

In order to assist employees who may be considering making a change in their health coverage, a Health Benefits

Fair will be held on Friday, May 7 in the Multipurpose Room of Ely Center between 2-4 p.m. Representatives from Blue Cross/Blue Shield, Columbia Medical Plan, George Washington University Health Plan, Aetna, Group Health Association, Health Plus and Kaiser-Georgetown Community Health Plan will be available to answer questions and help you decide which plan would be best for your health insurance needs.

Further information regarding where registration forms can be obtained and other details concerning Open Season will be distributed shortly. If you have any questions or comments, contact David Curtis in the Personnel Office on x5113 voice or TDD.

New phone number

The telephone number for David A. Curtis, coordinator of Compensation and Benefits, has been changed from x5554 TDD to x5113 voice and TDD. The telephone number x5554 is now the TDD number for Interpreting Services in Dawes House.

College almost meets energy goal

by Jim Hull

Last December, On the Green carried an energy message setting a goal of 10% energy reduction in Fiscal year 1982. Based on experience over the last several years—and a session with my crystal ball—a monthly accumulative target was plotted. This target through January was the use of 50,000 BTUs of energy per square foot of floor space.

With the last of the utility bills for January now received and the consumption of power, fuel oil and gas converted to a common denominator, it has been determined that we used only 50,682 BTUs of energy through the first four months of this fiscal year. That is just a little more than 1% above the target. And don't forget that January was one of the coldest months in recent history. Even October was cooler than normal by 84 degree days.

The extreme cold in January made it necessary to adjust some of our controls to provide more heat, just to keep the pipes from freezing. Also, many auxiliary heaters were used in various rooms to keep temperatures somewhere near the comfort zone. Think what we could have done if we had a normal winter!

This remarkable restraint in energy consumption in the face of a very adverse season could be attributable to a quirk in the crystal ball, but I prefer to believe each of you helped in your own way. Congratulations!

The 10% energy goal is set at 65,000 BTUs through February. Another report in April will tell you how well you performed. We have a long way to go to hit a 10% reduction by the end of September, but it can be done with your continued help.
